

Rush for residency

WHEN buyers at Harrington Grove take up residency early next year, not only will they be living in an idyllic location with gorgeous bushland surrounds and beautiful views, but they'll also be planting the first seeds to becoming part of a close-knit and evolving community.

Building of the first homes is not expected to begin for at least another month, but future residents have already started to get involved and learn about their new community.

Developers Harrington Estates have recently hosted community forum nights at which they introduced the new residents to the many new and future technologies that will be available to them when they move into their new homes.

“The forums proved to be a

Smart thinking:The Mobi-Q designed by Harrington Estates in conjunction with David Fuller, the chief executive of Nepean Engineering, as a mobile barbecue and trailer for free use by the Harrington Park community for street parties and other celebrations.

great a success with many people staying late, enthusiastically discussing ideas for their new community,” said

Harrington Estates spokesman Terry Goldacre. For further details call 4631 3200 or visit harringtongrove.com.au