Services deliver a lifestyle package

SALLY MACMILLAN

WHEN major urban and rural developments began, residents often found themselves isolated from established neighbourhoods, their dream patch lacking much infrastructure beyond the basics.

There was little in on-site transport, services or facilities. Getting to work, school or shopping was a slog.

Fast-track to today and developers have listened to the people, with master-planned suburbs and estates becoming lifestyle community hubs, incorporating extensive communal facilities, including community and business centres and village greens, recreational amenities such as waterways, golf courses, sports ovals, playgrounds, barbecue and picnic nooks, parklands and hike and bike paths.

Along with the physical infrastructure has come interaction of community social planning, with neighbourhood get-togethers and a 12-month calendar of events.

Most developments today are a re-invention of the neighbourhoods of yesteryear — with value add ons.

Here's some of the stand-outs offering a new dawn of community across Sydney and beyond.

There's room to run free

SARAH and Rick Verheyen had been yearning for a place where their children could grow up as they did — with bush surrounds, creeks to muck about in, space for a vegie patch and some chooks.

Nothing took their fancy as they fanned out on forays from their Stanhope Gardens home.

Then they found The Ponds, fell in love with the estate and camped out for four days and nights to secure their block.

"We wanted the kids to have somewhere where they could run free in safety and for us to be with like-minded families who have the same values we do," said the mum of three.

"I grew up around the back of Castle Hill and this reminds me of the bush and creeks there. We also wanted a real community for us as a family."

The couple didn't get the block they wanted, but happily settled for their second choice next door.

"We've got bush surrounds, a park out in front, the creek across the road, and the primary school is just a 15-minute walk away," Mrs Verheyen said.

The couple bought a 593sq m lot and built a four-bedroom Metricon home, with home theatre, open plan kitchen, dining and living areas leading to an outdoor entertainer area with barbecue.

"We made it as wide as possible so the kids would have a big backyard to run around in and we could fit in a pool — and, of course, the vegie patch and the chook run," Mrs Verheyen said.

"We all love the bushland setting, the creek, the parks, the hike and bike trails and all the sustainable living features of The Ponds.

"It's pretty stunning that we can have all this in the middle of Sydney.

"I used to work at Frenchs Forest. When some friends there found out we'd bought here they said, 'Heavens, you need a passport to get out there'.

"But really, we're the ones who are so central to everything — we have great shops, services, schools, sports and recreation and we're between the city and the Blue Mountains.

"It doesn't get much better than this."

THIS new community in Sydney's southwest has appealed to young families, drawn to the estate by its parklands and the bushland recreational area by the banks of the Georges River and its location close to services and amenities.

When complete, houses, playgrounds and parks will be linked by hike and bike paths that will also meander through bushland down to the riverbanks.

Around 320 lots have been sold and this month the estate's third community park, Central Park, will be officially opened.

Located next to Moorebank, Georges Fair is within walking distance of four primary and two high schools, the local shopping centre and the New Brighton Golf Course.

Numerous bus routes are on the doorstep, with Liverpool and Hols-worthy train stations and Liverpool Westfield are five minutes drive away.

Tempted by the lifestyle

WHILE living at Tempe for 25 years, Michael Brodigan kept an eye on developments at Discovery Point before buying an investment apartment off the plan in Greenbank seven years ago.

Employed by Qantas, Mr Brodigan was familiar with the site from his time spent working in security there before Qantas sold the land to Australand.

Proximity to the city and the train station made the precinct popular with renters. His investment started to see great returns so he bought another apartment, in Verge, the second building, but this time a larger three-bedroom.

But when the building was complete, the apartment and views appealed so he moved in.

"The layout of the apartment suited me and my youngest daughter who lives with me," he said. "My eldest daughter also bought an apartment downstairs and after living there for a while is now renting it out."

"It was a relief to move in somewhere so clean and fresh and finished so beautifully."

"It's only one train stop to the airport and I can catch the train from my doorstep."

He loves the lifestyle, the outdoor activities around the Cooks River foreshore and the many neighbourhood parks.

Becoming an owner-occupier hasn't stunted his investment portfolio, either. He bought a third apartment off the plan in Vine, where residents are now moving in and has registered interest in buying an apartment at Arc, the next building to go up.

"Discovery Point represents a unique opportunity to buy into a new community with existing

THIS resort-style estate of residential towers is a blend of waterfront and green space and offers a combination of modern and heritage architecture.

Just 12 minutes from the Sydney CBD, the pet-friendly development along the Cooks River foreshore has a range of apartment complexes, a train station, plans for a new neighbourhood shopping centre, commercial and retail precincts, restored heritage buildings and extensive parklands.

Facilities include a gym, heated pool, wading pool, sundeck, barbecue areas, playgrounds and the private Mount Olympus heritage gardens. Apartments have a range of floor plans including loft, student, flexi-plan, parkview and some with large outdoor living areas.

What's on offer: Arc, the fifth residential apartment building at the estate, is about to be launched. The new release follows the sales success for Linc, released in May, which saw 102 out of 126 apartments sold off the plan in the first 24 hours.

Arc comprises 88, one-, two- and three-bedroom maisonette and single-level apartments with varied floor plans. One-bedroom apartments are from $395,000.

AT the southern end of the eastern suburbs, this new $600 million development sits on 13.6ha of prime oceanfront land.

It will include around 570 architecturally designed apartments and courtyard homes, and vacant land lots will be available to build freestanding homes.

On-site features will include a central water feature, open parklands, hike and bike trails, coastal lookouts and tree-lined streets.

The site is immediately adjacent to the Prince Henry development with four elite golf courses and Little Bay beach on the doorstep.

What's on offer: Releases from October, with prices to start from $475,000 for apartments.

Perfection on the foreshore

YOUNG and well travelled, Monika and Nick Moutos moved to Sydney four years ago from Adelaide, renting in Cabarita for about 12 months.

During that time they came to explore nearby Breakfast Point, loving the layout of the estate, the open space and foreshore walkways.

Work took them to Brisbane, but they missed Sydney and returned early, buying into the estate.

"It was just so unreal finding this wondrous place in inner Sydney," Mrs Moutos explained. "We love the family-oriented feel of the place and all the fabulous facilities."

In February they bought a two-bedroom apartment with two bathrooms and double parking with a big balcony in the Jacaranda building.

Mrs Moutos works on the international side for an energy company in the city and Mr Moutos works for the Canon camera company at Macquarie Park.

"One of the reasons we love Breakfast Point is that it's close to work for both of us. I can catch the express ferry to the city and Nick is just 15 minutes drive from his work," she said.

"And another reason is that when we get back from work, it doesn't feel like you're in the city. We go for evening walks along the foreshores. We love the open spaces and the centre with all the shopping needs and restaurants.

"The Village green is just gorgeous — on the weekends everyone is out picnicking."

The couple believe buying a big two-bedroom with good outdoor space was serendipity for them. Mrs Moutos has just found out she's pregnant and can't wait to become a Breakfast Point mum.

"Our apartment is way big enough for that," she said. "We're both over the moon and so glad we bought here."

THE largest master-planned residential development in the Southern Highlands for a decade, Renwick has released its first land lots.

The 600-lot estate, northeast of Mittagong, will have a village centre and hike and bike paths, with a third of the 115ha site retained as open space or parks.

Construction has begun on nine display homes by six builders — Allworth, GJ Gardner Homes Southern Highlands, Hotondo Southern Highlands, Marksman Homes, McDonald Jones and Procorp — which will be available to land buyers.

Eligible buyers can claim a Federal Government Housing Affordability Fund rebate of $20,000. Classified as "easy building", these lots are near the proposed village centre and are within a walk of open woodlands and abundant areas of natural space.

What's on offer: A handful of blocks are left from the initial 19 released, ranging from $210,000 to $330,000. A second release will be announced soon. To reserve a lot, buyers are required to pay a $300 deposit.

BINGARA GORGE

THIS prestigious lifestyle community is rapidly evolving as residents move in and new releases open up.

Framed by the dramatic gorges of the Nepean River and Allens Creek, Bingara Gorge is a series of distinct and individual villages around an 18-hole championship course designed by golfing champion Graham Marsh.

Sitting alongside 120ha of protected bushland at the foothills of the Southern Highlands, the estate will have a village centre, a primary school — now up and running — community services and facilities such as a leisure centre and pool.

The 450ha estate is attracting young families, drawn to the school, the safety aspect, community feel, golf course living, and 8ha of sports fields, nature reserves, parklands, walking trails and waterways. The first nine holes of the championship course are due for completion next year, followed by the back nine 18 months later.

The proposed Country Club and Leisure Centre is expected to include a pro shop, cafe, bar and bistro, restaurant, gym, swimming pool and tennis courts, depending on planning approvals.

Bingara Gorge will eventually house some 3500 people in up to 1165 homes.

Bingara Gorge is just minutes from the Hume Highway, 20 minutes from Macarthur Square shopping centre and 25 minutes from Wollongong's fine beaches.

The latest village, the Highlands, goes on the market this month.

The Highlands consists of a very limited first release of 29 lots, 13 of which will be offered only to registered database subscribers in September.

Some of the lots will have views towards the Razorback Mountain, while others take in the 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th fairways of the golf course.

At the heart of the village, and on the highest vantage point, will be a central park, designed for people to share the views and beauty of the surroundings, enjoy a picnic or barbecue on a fine day or hold community events.

What's on offer: Lots in the village, from about 800sq m to 2000sq m, are priced from around $270,000. Availability of other lots and house-and-land packages on request.

SOMERVIEW PARK

CONSTRUCTION of the first homes is well under way at this new residential development set along the eastern edge of the Somerset Park community at Thornton.

Somerview Park will have 243 lots on a 120ha elevated site, overlooking reserve and wetlands, 15 minutes' drive from Maitland and 35 minutes from Newcastle.

The new community offers neighbourhood shops, Thornton Primary School, Francis Greenway High School and several pre-schools, with a university and TAFE and evening colleges nearby.

The F3, the New England Highway and Thornton train station are also within easy reach.

What's on offer: Availability and price range on request.

McKEACHIE'S RUN

Developer Stockland
Details (02) 4932 1644;
www.mckeachie.com.au

NOW home to more than 200 residents, this estate on 120ha offers a semi-rural lifestyle in the heart of the Hunter Valley's famous wine and food country.

McKeachie's Run, with views over parklands, open space and the Oakhampton wetlands, is 30 minutes from the city and beach attractions of Newcastle and not much more than two hours' drive of Sydney.

Amenities will include a sporting field with community building, cricket nets, hike and bike paths and proposed neighbourhood shops.

On completion in 2014, this community will include more than 650 homes.

McKeachie's Run has the largest display village in the Maitland area with 13 homes by MacDonald Jones, Clarendon, Eden Brae, AV Jennings, Cosmopolitan and Perry.

What's on offer: Blocks are priced from $148,000 and house and land packages start from $367,595.

Space to grow a family

KATIE and Nathan Dunn, both 24, weren't really looking for a home when they stumbled across Glenmore Ridge.

Nathan, a motor sales executive, and Katie, a high-school teacher, were happily renting while managing their investment properties.

"I'm from the local area so have to drive past the development each day on my way to work," Mr Dunn explained. "We weren't actually looking to buy when I first noticed the advertisements for the development — there was a lot of signage around and I guess it really just sparked my curiosity."

"We eventually went in to the sales office to ask a few questions and ended up buying the same day. It all happened very quickly."

The couple had looked at several existing properties but thought the value was much better in Glenmore Ridge, considering the cost of the land and being able to build their ideal home from scratch.

The couple bought a 320sq m lot in January and hope to move into their Zen Homes single-storey, three-bedroom house in November.

"Zen offered us what's called a turn key package, which basically means that everything extra is done for you — driveway, landscaping and so on," Mr Dunn said.

"And that's great as it means there's not a lot that Katie and I have to organise ourselves."

A key factor in the Duns' decision to buy into Glenmore Ridge was the location — both grew up in Glenmore Park and wanted to stay in the area and raise a family.

Other factors included access to work, the facilities on-site and being in a community of other young couples and families.

"The concept of the development is particularly attractive to young people — the prices for the house-and-land packages were really appealing to us being a younger couple and looking to start a family down the track, so I imagine it would also appeal to others in a similar situation to myself and my wife," Mr Dunn said.

"Also the fact that there are plans for a second shopping centre for residents is great and the football fields will be handy for me."

"I'm an old footy tragic. I don't play for a club anymore but I enjoy a kick when I get a chance."

STOCKLAND is continuing its momentum at Glenmore Ridge, having recently gained development approval for its second precinct.

The western precinct will have 255 mixed dwellings, a shopping centre, space for a primary school and creek corridors and connections.

The evolving estate, just five minutes from the centre of Penrith, appeals to young couples, young families and retirees. Glenmore Ridge, at the eastern end of Glenmore Park, sits on more than 58ha and will hold 530 new houses released in 16 stages over three years and due for completion in 2013.

The primary school will be built next to the playing fields.

Established schools, shops and a wide variety of sporting facilities are close by, and there's space for hike and bike paths.

Recently released blocks are within reach of Jacaranda Park, where the playground and picnic area was upgraded and more than doubled in size. The new park was officially opened in July.

It is situated on sought-after elevated ground and Glenmore Ridge offers small and larger family-sized home sites, as well as house-and-land packages.

What's on offer: Currently selling in The Bluestone release, blocks ranging in size from 280sq m to 664sq m, priced from $205,000 to $290,000. House and land packages are from $356,470 for a three-bedroom home with one bathroom and single garage.
