Meet your neighbours

The Vidlers enjoy living at Harrington Grove so much that now three generations of their family are living here.

It was the lifestyle, the great community and the scenic surrounds of Harrington Grove that appealed to Deborah Vidler ...as well as being near her family. She is looking forward to meeting new friends and neighbours and seeing the community grow. Whilst awaiting completion of their new home at Maculata, Deborah and husband Max are staying with son Robert and his wife Kim at their Araucaria home. Two streets away, also in Araucaria, live Robert's sister Kristie, her husband Richard Dent and their three children, who recently relocated from Queensland. Not only do the families live within two minutes from each other, they nearly all work together in their business, M & D Plastics Pty Ltd, which is conveniently about to move to nearby Smeaton Grange. "We have really enjoyed the cocktail parties and met quite a few people already. There is a terrific community spirit; my daughter and her family have met people around the pool and my son and son-in-law have both joined the golf club," says Deborah. "We've met lots of people through the golf club, which plays a different golf course once a month. The club has about 20 members of all different standards," says Robert.

The entire Vidler family are enjoying different aspects of living at Harrington Grove however all agree that the sense of community, the Country Club's great facilities and the picturesque setting all add up to a great lifestyle for each generation.

The repair of Harrington Park homestead has commenced

The majestic homestead perched on the hill at Harrington Park is currently undergoing some repair and conservation work.

The homestead began its life as a humble stone and clay brick cottage when it was built by Captain William Douglas Campbell in 1817. Over the years it passed through many different owners and has had various extensions, changes and uses before growing into its present form; an elegant Georgian style home with a Victorian veranda. Sir Warwick

Fairfax bought the homestead in 1944 as a weekend retreat and it has remained with his wife Lady Fairfax since. Sir Warwick made extensive alterations to the homestead and he spent much time there with his family reading and writing. He wrote several plays, three of which were performed in Sydney, and he also wrote a philosophical book during this time.

"Although the homestead is currently covered in scaffolding the actual work being done is more like gentle repair, fixing joinery and some under pinning," says Lester Tropman, of Tropman & Tropman Architects, specialists in heritage conservation. "The work is being carefully undertaken to respect the home's Fairfax history; to repair it to good order so it can be used as a family home again."

The homestead is a significant piece of state history and we look forward to bringing you further updates about the repair of the homestead.

The first year of the Harrington Grove golf season has drawn to a close with the 2011 Club Championship being played out and won by Scott Granger. The season's end was marked by a November weekend away in Bowral where a great time was had by all; lots of golf and loads of fun. The weekend ended with a presentation back at the Country Club where trophies were presented. Congratulations to Scott Granger for his win over Chris Young in a very exciting final played on 16th October at Camden Lakeside. Spring Fair at Harrington Grove

Harrington Grove's Spring Fair, held on Sunday 13th November, was a fun filled day, with beautiful weather accompanied by jazz music, tantalising roast lunches and finished off with pool entertainment.

The day commenced as Jess Pollard Trio and Champagne Sundaes performed impressive modern and traditional jazz music in the amphitheatre. While parents indulged their tastebuds with spit roast lunches with various choices of succulent meats and freshly made salads, the kids got wet and wild on "Skull Island". Some even had a game of bocce on the lawn and a friendly cricket match with their neighbours. It was a great day of entertainment, food and activities for the whole family.
